COURSE GUIDE

The Course Structure

The course consists of four course modules, two of which are more geared to teaching language and literature: Task-Based Grammar and Teaching Literature, and two of which provide greater depth to your English studies in both language and literature: Language Studies 2 and Literary Experimentation.

What Is Compulsory?

All exams, both written (including take-home assignments) and oral, are compulsory. Note that compulsory submitted written work, e.g. take-home assignments must be sent to your teacher/examiner via Ouriginal/Urkund¹.

Attendance and active participation is compulsory for all seminars² apart from the Language Studies 2, although we strongly advise you to go along to all seminars and lectures (the few lectures there are, are almost all combined seminars/lectures).

The following provides a more detailed breakdown of the course modules and examinations:

Task-Based Grammar (studied with GY Teachers, 9AEN73)

Teachers: Amanda Hoskins

Teaching: task-based grammar seminars.

Examination: written lesson plans & theoretical justification. Compulsory attendance (100%)³ and active participation in seminars, including an oral presentation/critical discussion of the lesson plans.

¹ If you submit work through the submissions app in Lisam, this will be done automatically by your examiner.

² This means a minimum attendance requirement of 80% with make-up assignments to compensate for the seminar(s) you have missed.

Teaching Literature (studied with GY Teachers, 9AEN73)

Teacher: Maria Strääf

Teaching: teaching literature seminars.

Examination: written lesson plans & theoretical justification. Compulsory attendance (100%)³ and active participation in seminars, including an oral presentation/critical discussion of the lesson plans.

Language Studies 2 (studied with English 2, 711G75)

Teacher: Emile Farmer

Teaching: lectures with group work tasks.

Examination: take-home exam.

Literary Experimentation (studied with the SLM programme, 707G23)
