

(757A41) Queer Studies: Subjects, Bodies, Ecologies
Required Reading, VT2026

Required Reading

- Kadji Amin, "Genealogies of Queer Theory," in The Cambridge Companion to Queer Studies, ed. Siobhan Somerville (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2020), 17–29.
- Kadji Amin, "We Are All Nonbinary: A Brief History of Accidents," Representations 158, no. 1 (2022): 106–119.
- Leo Bersani, "Is the Rectum a Grave?," October 43 (1987): 197–222.
- Judith Butler, "Bodies that Matter," from Bodies that Matter (London: Routledge, 1993), 3–27.
- Judith Butler, "Critically Queer," GLQ 1 (1993): 17–32.
- Mel Y. Chen, "Following Mercurial Affect," from Animacies: Biopolitics, Racial Mattering, and Queer Affect (Durham: Duke University Press, 2012), 189–221.
- Ann Fausto-Sterling, "Dwelling Dualisms," from Sexing the Body: Gender Politics and the Construction of Sexuality (New York: Basic Books, 2000), 1–29.
- Michel Foucault, "The Repressive Hypothesis" and "Scientia Sexualis," from The History of Sexuality, Volume 1: An Introduction (New York: Pantheon Books, 1978), 15–73.
- Paul Preciado, "Pharmaco-Pornographic Politics: Towards a New Gender Ecology," Parallax 14, no. 1 (2008): 105–117.
- Gayle Rubin, "Thinking Sex: Notes for a Radical Theory of Sexuality," from Deviations: A Gayle Rubin Reader (Durham: Duke University Press, 2011), 137–181.
- Eve Kosofsky Sedgwick, "Queer and Now," from Tendencies (London: Routledge, 1994), 1–19.
- Ann Laura Stoler, "A Colonial Reading of Foucault: Bourgeois Bodies and Racial Selves," from Carnal Knowledge and Imperial Power: Race and the Intimate in Colonial Rule (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2010), 140–161.
- Michael Warner, "What's Wrong with Normal?," in The Trouble with Normal: Sex, Politics, and the Ethics of Queer Life, Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 2000.