Intended learning outcomes

The course aims to develop commanding, practical approaches to improve your influence and effectiveness in one-to-one, multiparty, and negotiations. This course encourages participants to develop their language skills in situations and contexts relevant to their professional work. The program will be based on the needs of the participants, developing language skills through practice Meetings and Negotiations, vocabulary development, language analysis, active listening practice, extensive role-plays, and frequent group and individual feedback. Participants will also discuss the Cultural Aspects of meetings, their expectations of how meetings work, and the associated decision-making process.

Course content

The course will contain basic professional communication. Basic negotiation strategies to plan and achieve the company's objectives in a variety of contexts will be covered. Participants will be given an opportunity to explore before, during, and after negotiation skills and strategies. Multi-party negotiation will be conducted to understand the power differences of each party, recognize the barriers related to power differences, and the medium of communication. Cross-cultural aspects of meetings and negotiations will also be covered in the course.

Teaching and working methods

The course is given completely online. The teaching takes place mainly in the form of lectures, seminars, guest lectures, and presentations.

Examination

If special circumstances prevail, and if it is possible with consideration of the nature of the compulsory component, the examiner may decide to replace the compulsory component with another equivalent component.

If the LiU coordinator for students with disabilities has granted a student the right to an adapted examination for a written examination in an examination hall, the student has the right to it.

If the coordinator has recommended for the student an adapted examination or alternative form of examination, the examiner may grant this if the examiner assesses that it is possible, based on consideration of the course objectives.

An examiner may also decide that an adapted examination or alternative form of examination if the examiner assessed that special circumstances prevail, and the examiner assesses that it is possible while maintaining the objectives of the course.

Students failing an exam covering either the entire course or part of the course twice are entitled to have a new examiner appointed for the reexamination.

Students who have passed an examination may not retake it in order to improve their grades.

Grades

Three-grade scale, U, G, VG

Other information

Planning and implementation of a course must take its starting point in the wording of the syllabus. The course evaluation included in each course must therefore take up the question how well the course agrees with the syllabus.

The course is carried out in such a way that both men's and women's experience and knowledge is made visible and developed.

If special circumstances prevail, the vice-chancellor may in a special decision specify the preconditions for temporary deviations from this course syllabus, and delegate the right to take such decisions.
