Entry requirements

The course is aimed both at ERASMUS students and at other students here on an agreement with the Faculty of Arts and Sciences who have the same level of language knowledge of Swedish equivalent to the course Beginner's Course in Swedish for Foreign Students, Level B1:1.

Intended learning outcomes

On completion of the course, the student should have command of the Swedish language equal to level B1, according to CEFR (The Common European Framework of Reference for Languages). On completion of the course, the student should be able to:

- broadly understand topical TV and radio programmes, or programmes about subjects relating to working life or to the student's own personal interests, provided that the language is spoken slowly.
- understand texts that consist of mainly high-frequency language relating to working life
- understand descriptions of events, feelings and requests in private correspondence
- without being prepared, enter into a conversation about topics that are familiar, that are of personal interest or relate to everyday life – e.g. family, leisure time activities, work, travel and topical subjects
- briefly give an account of, and provide reasons for the student's views and plans
- tell a story or give an account of what happens in a book or a film, and describe their impressions of it
- write personal letters that describe experiences and impressions.

Course content

Text

Study of texts that are adapted to the course level and that are used as a basis for reading and listening comprehension exercises, for systematic vocabulary training and as a basis for oral and written tasks.

Oral Comprehension

Exercises in listening comprehension, pronunciation and oral communication

Grammar and Written Proficiency

Study of basic Swedish grammar, with a focus on syntax. Exercises in the writing of texts.

Teaching and working methods

Teaching is given in the form of classes, seminars and exercises. To a great extent, the different parts are integrated. In addition to the instruction given, it is necessary to carry out individual studies.

Examination

Examination consists of continuous assessment throughout the course, as well as of one oral exam and one written exam at the end of the course. Detailed information about examination is found in the study guide.

If special circumstances prevail, and if it is possible with consideration of the nature of the compulsory component, the examiner may decide to replace the compulsory component with another equivalent component.

If the LiU coordinator for students with disabilities has granted a student the right to an adapted examination for a written examination in an examination hall, the student has the right to it.

If the coordinator has recommended for the student an adapted examination or alternative form of examination, the examiner may grant this if the examiner assesses that it is possible, based on consideration of the course objectives.

An examiner may also decide that an adapted examination or alternative form of examination if the examiner assessed that special circumstances prevail, and the examiner assesses that it is possible while maintaining the objectives of the course.

Students failing an exam covering either the entire course or part of the course twice are entitled to have a new examiner appointed for the reexamination.

Students who have passed an examination may not retake it in order to improve their grades.

Other information

Planning and implementation of a course must take its starting point in the wording of the syllabus. The course evaluation included in each course must therefore take up the question how well the course agrees with the syllabus.

The course is carried out in such a way that both men's and women's experience and knowledge is made visible and developed.

If special circumstances prevail, the vice-chancellor may in a special decision specify the preconditions for temporary deviations from this course syllabus, and delegate the right to take such decisions.
