Entry requirements

General and specific entrance requirements as stipulated in the syllabus of the program.

Intended learning outcomes

On completion of the course the students should be able to

- show knowledge of concepts, theories and problems within the field of globalisation,
- describe and critically examine ethical problems and arguments in the discussion about global justice,
- demonstrate capacity to argue for a position in the discussion about global justice,
- handle issues related to global justice in politics or professional work,
- show an open and critical attitude towards positions and arguments in social ethics.

Course content

The course focuses on theories of globalisation and theories of global justice. A central topic is the concept of global justice, its different interpretations, its relation to human rights, its implications for new global actors like NGOs and corporations, its justification and various suggested ways of its implementation. Students present a proposal for introducing a global justice issue (global organization or global issue like migration, climate change, fair trade etc.) for a political organization, political party, municipality board or work place. Texts in the area are studied.

Teaching and working methods

In lectures and seminars, students read and analyse texts, participate in group discussions, write papers and are actively involved in seminar discussions. In addition, lectures are provided.

Examination

Active participation in seminar discussions is required. The course is examined by a the writing of a paper.

Students failing an exam covering either the entire course or part of the course twice are entitled to have a new examiner appointed for the reexamination.

Students who have passed an examination may not retake it in order to improve their grades.
