Course offered for

- Master's Programme in Child Studies

Entry requirements

A bachelor's degree in the humanities, social sciences or the behavioral sciences with a major (or its equivalent) in a field relevant to the programme, e.g. anthropology, communication studies, education, history, language studies, media studies, political science, psychology, social work and sociology. Successfully completed 45 credits of the first year's courses on the master's program in Child studies (F7MCH). Documented knowledge of English equivalent to "Engelska B"/"Engelska 6".

Intended learning outcomes

After completion of the course, the student should on an advanced level be able to:

- discuss the differences between different theories concerning children, gender and sexuality
- analyze how notions and ideals of children, gender and sexuality are constructed in various social and cultural contexts;
- problematize the relationships between the concepts children, gender and sexuality;
- critically discuss and analyze how gender and sexuality are made relevant in relation to children

Course content

In the course theories concerning children, gender and sexuality are covered that serve to illuminate the relationship between these concepts, historically as well as today.

In the course it is further studied how children's gender and sexuality are dependent upon the social and cultural context. Furthermore, in the course the ways in which notions on gender and sexuality find expression in the everyday life of children, such as for example in the media and in school, are addressed.

Teaching and working methods

Lectures and related discussions take place online on an interactive learning platform. In addition to lectures there are seminars, and group work online. Between the lectures and the seminars the students independently acquire the course literature, complete individual and group assignments, and communicate with other students online.

The student must have access to e-mail and Internet. The course is presented in various multi-media formats. In order to guarantee a learning situation online, and, in order for the student to be able to actively participate in the course and communicate with fellow students and the teacher, it is therefore important that the student have access to the correct hard- and software. Information concerning the specifications of the equipment necessary for the course can be found in the study guide.

English is the language of instruction.

Examination

The examinations consist of active participation in seminars, workshops and group assignments online, as well as through individual written assignments submitted online. Detailed information on the examinations can be found in the study guide.

Students failing an exam covering either the entire course or part of the course twice are entitled to have a new examiner appointed for the reexamination.

Students who have passed an examination may not retake it in order to improve their grades.

Grades

ECTS, EC

Other information

Planning and implementation of a course must take its starting point in the wording of the syllabus. The course evaluation included in each course must therefore take up the question how well the course agrees with the syllabus.

The course is carried out in such a way that both men's and women's experience and knowledge is made visible and developed.
