Specific information

The course cannot be included in the same degree as TNGD24.

Course offered for

- Bachelor's Programme in Graphic Design and Communication

Prerequisites

Mainly the program's previous courses in design, production and information design.

Intended learning outcomes

The aim of the course is to provide a theoretical and practical knowledge of implementing communication projects, from idea to final result with external assignments, as well as basic knowledge of group dynamics and the own role of a group. After completing the course, the student should be able to:

- Manage a communication project from idea to finished concept based on a design process
- Explain the development of concepts for specific media channels based on communicative and technical perspectives
- Produce communicatively and technically delivery-ready prototypes based on the communication needs of an external client
- Apply empirical methods as part of a design process and reflect on how these methods can influence design choices
- Describe the function and relationship of different roles within creative work processes
- Reflect on their own role in a working group

Course content

Marketing communicative design process, group dynamics, empirical methods, market analysis, media channels, media design and production.
